

Meet your teacher!

Hi everyone! My name is Mrs Yorke and I'm so excited to be your teacher this year! You'll see in the picture that I'm dressed as Hermione – that's because I love World Book Day and I absolutely love to read! I'm a huge Harry Potter fan and have even been called the "Harry Potter teacher" before. In our class, we'll learn lots of new things, work as a team, and have lots of fun along the way. I can't wait to get to know all of you and hear about your favourite books too – it's going to be a magical year!

My favourite things

Food: Sushi
Colour: Blue
Animal: Cats (I have 3!) but I also love dragons!
Movie: Muppet Christmas Carol
Game: Harry Potter
Book: Hard to choose I love to read!
Sport: Drumfit
Activities: Baking (especially rainbow cakes with my daughter) reading, listening to audio books, singing, spending quality time with my family.

More about Me

I LOVE being a teacher because I get to help children learn and grow every day. My favourite part is seeing those "lightbulb moments" – when something clicks and a big smile appears! I'm especially passionate about science – I love watching children explore, experiment, and discover new things for themselves. It's such an exciting subject! I also LOVE to sing. When I was younger, I sang in a choir and trained as a classical singer for many years. Now, I enjoy sharing what I've learned to help children build their confidence and develop their own musical talents in choir. I can't wait to bring all of this into our classroom this year!

"Working hard is important, but there's something that matters even more, believing in yourself." Harry Potter

I think if I wasn't a teacher I would become a professional cake decorator because I love to get creative and discover new ways to make different kind of cakes. Here is my latest creation for my daughter's 7th birthday. STITCH!
